Introduced First for the 2007/2008 Season, Gearbox Carries Momentum into 2008/2009:

Gearbox racquetball was conceived by the company's founder, designer, and pro-level racquetball player, Rafael Filippini. For over a decade, Rafael has been involved in the racquetball industry designing innovative racquetball products. He created Gearbox to fulfill his vision of a racquetball only, design-driven brand. Gearbox racquetball is free from the passing trends of the racquetball industry. Every product has been thought through with the serious and recreational racquetball player in mind. The concept is simple - to empower the racquetball community at large.

Rafael created Gearbox racquetball to be a more organic brand that didn't have to follow industry rules. Rafael Filippini shared his vision of this new brand - a brand that would empower the individual racquetball player - with his cousin Rafael Aguilo.

Rafael Aguilo, an established entrepreneur, found himself doing something he would have never previously imagined, dropping his other endeavors to pursue Rafael Filippini's vision. Rafael Aguilo recounts the decision as "one of the most exciting of my life." Together they decided how to build a company that was set up to design and manufacture the best quality products in the racquetball industry.

Gearbox racquetball takes its roots in being a company for the player designed by a racquetball player. Seeing racquetball not only as a great sport but also as a great lifestyle, Gearbox wants to create a proud and enduring identity for the sport. Gearbox is committed to designing products for the racquetball player lifestyle, products that promote racquetball on and off the court.
